Michael J. Montgomery is an advisor and investor in early-stage companies, an active board member, and a Lecturer at the Anderson School of Business. Michael's course at Anderson is about the impact of technology on media.

Michael was the Co-Founder and President of Montgomery & Co., LLC, a boutique investment bank focused on media and technology, from 2000 through 2013. The Investment Bank specialized in M&A and equity financings for private and public companies.

Prior to Montgomery & Co., he served as President and Chief Executive Officer of Sega GameWorks L.L.C., a joint venture between Sega, Universal Studios, and DreamWorks. Prior to joining Sega GameWorks, he was a partner and Senior Executive of DreamWorks SKG from 1995 to 1996. He was their lead executive for their $900 million equity raise in 1995.

He joined DreamWorks after a nine year career at the Walt Disney Company. As Vice President and Treasurer, Michael was responsible for numerous innovative financing arrangements. From 1993, he was the Directeur General and Chief Financial Officer of Euro Disney in France.

He was a Director and chaired the Audit committees of DreamWorks Animation and Synacor. He is now on the board of a number of private companies.

He received an M.B.A. from the Amos Tuck School at Dartmouth College (1977), where he earned a BA degree (1976) as a Rufus Choate Scholar with magna cum laude honors.
